* Tickets purchased by 5:00 pm on the Friday before each concert will include dinner. Tickets purchased after 5:00 pm on Friday may be available at the same price, but will not include dinner.

WITH GRATITUDE

We at INNERchamber are proud to continue providing engaging chamber music programming for our community, enjoyed both in person and livestreamed. We thank our loyal base of supporters who continue to believe alongside us that live music has a vital role to play in the everyday well-being of our community.

Thank you!

season 14
2023.2024

Roy Lewis, actor and poet, Ben Bolt-Martin, cello
Graham Hargrove, percussion

1 October 2023

We locked three erudite, eclectic, and excitable artists in a room together and told them they can't come out until they've come up with a way to describe creativity. It would be dangerous, let alone disingenuous, to try to describe what is going to happen next.

Andrew Chung, violin, Daniel Ramjattan, guitar
Tamar Ilana, singer

24 March 2024

Tamar Ilana brings the authentic experience of Jewish/ Cree-Saulteaux heritage to her knowledge of the music of people in exile throughout Eastern Europe and beyond. Collaborating with Andrew Chung and Daniel Ramjattan, she will share stories and songs from Sephardic Jewish tradition relating them to the experience of others far and near.

Charmaine Fopoussi, piano, with the
INNERchamber String Quartet

19 November 2023

The Quintet in A minor by Florence Price is a foundational work of American music which is only recently getting its due. Canadian Graham Campbell's eloquent and genre-fluid Three Pieces for Piano Quintet inhabit a sonic world as foreign to Robert Schumann's Quintet as it is complementary.

Sharon Wei, viola, with the
INNERchamber String Quartet

28 April 2024

Ready to enjoy retirement, Brahms fully intended that the spirited and stirring String Quintet in G major would be his final work, a triumphant epilogue on a brilliant career. By stark contrast, Shostakovich, in poor health, finished his final quartet with a failing right hand and made every possible haste to have it performed lest he should die without having heard it.

Peter Shackleton, clarinet, Jody Davenport, viola
Anna Ronai, piano, Sara-Jeanne Hosie, narrator

3 March 2024

Mozart famously composed symphonies at all-night billiard sessions. The craft of Jean Francaix lies subtly disguised beneath a veneer of playful eccentricity. Narrator Sara-Jeanne Hosie joins the INNERchamber Ensemble to celebrate the magical power of play.

Liesel Deppe, flute, Julia Seager-Scott, harp
Ben Bolt-Martin, cello

26 May 2024

With the lengthening days, the world breathes deeply with the sense of renewal that comes with spring. The warmth of the sun gives us an opportunity for reflection and introspection, contemplating the winter now past and dreaming of the summer to come. Sunlit meditations by Damase, Pentland, and Luedeke.
